World AIDS Day, observed on December 1st each year since 1988, is dedicated towards raising awareness of the AIDS pandemic caused by the spread of HIV infection, and mourning of those who had died because of the deadly disease. Government and health officials, non-governmental organizations and individuals around the world observe this day, often with education on AIDS prevention and control.

World AIDS Day is one of the eight official global public health campaigns marked by the World Health Organization (WHO), along with World Health Day, World Blood Donor Day, World Immunization Week, World Tuberculosis Day, World No Tobacco Day, World Malaria Day and World Hepatitis Day. Since 1995, President of the United States has made an official proclamation on World AIDS Day.

With an aim of promoting awareness in society about the menace of this disease more than 100 students of our College participated in the awareness rally held on 30th November, 2019 which was flagged off by the Principal from the college. Students displayed banners, placards and raised slogans how to eradicate AIDS/HIV including the preventive measures. Special emphasis was given on removing the myths about this disease and with a whole hearted request for not discriminating towards individuals infected with the disease. The rally headed to Azad market from Government College of Education, Sector 20-D.

A blood donation camp was organised by College Red Ribbon Club in collaboration with the NSS unit on 29th February, 2020 in the college campus. The camp was organised under the supervision of staff from the Govt. Medical College & Hospital, Sector-32 Chandigarh.

The Chief guest Dr. Ravneet Kaur, Professor & Head of Department of Transfusion Medicine, GMCH-32, Chandigarh inaugurated the camp by cutting the ribbon and congratulated the management, the Principal Dr. Mrs. Renu Varma and students of college for coming forward to organize this event.

Dr. Tanvi Sood, Assistant Professor, Department of Transfusion Medicine, GMCH-32, Chandigarh gave a motivational talk on Blood Donation Camp. She told that blood volume is regained within 48-72 hours and cells of blood get replenished in 3-4 weeks. She laid stress on the fact that blood donation is also beneficial for the donor as it thins down the blood thereby reducing the cholesterol level. Nishu and Pansy Malhotra of B.Ed. Semester 4 recited poems to encourage everyone for blood donation.

Those who wished to donate blood were first checked by professionals for their haemoglobin level. One of the rooms was utilized for a thorough medical check-up of potential donors, as well as the donation itself. They were provided with milk, sandwich and a banana. Total 30 donors donated blood out of which 28 were students and 2 were the faculty members. Donors received certificate of recognition.

This talk was organised in order to bring our youth the real issues faced due to the indulgence in drugs and how it can be prevented by intervention of parents and family. Main speaker Dr. Ravneet Chawla working as an Associate Professor in this College. Dr. Ravneet Chawla, Associate Professor in Human Development and Family Relations, who is also a qualified Developmental Psychologist and Advanced Diploma holder in Child Guidance and Family Counselling (PU Merit Holder) brought into the limelight her one-of-its-kind experiences and understanding of the human behaviour. Dr. A. K. Srivastava, Principal, formally opened the talk. Dr. Mukhtiar Singh, Associate Professor and NSS Programme Officer, also helped in deliberation. Ms. Gurbina Chopra was the Student Coordinator and Ms. Anchal Vaishwas the Co-Ordinator. The group of panellists included Ms. Sakshi Poonia, Ms. Suchita Aggarwal, Mr. Bharat Sharma, Ms. Shivangi Arora, Mr. Lavish, Ms. Rollania, and Mr. Gagandeep Kaushik. Ms. Divyanshi Kalia served as the repertoire of the panel discussion.

To deal with the grass-root level causal factors of deviant human behaviour, role of family is extremely critical. Parents play a very important role in preventing their children and youth from indulging in substance abuse and helping them if they have initiated use. Children's and youth's attitude and behaviours can be shaped and altered to a significant extent by talking openly about the dangers of substance abuse, risks associated, etc. Parents also serve as behavioural role models must show disapproval and keep themselves engaged in a child's day-to-day activities. Role models influence a child's life to a great extent. Children and youth look up to them which, in turn, spare no effort in shaping behaviour at school, relationships, and making decisions. Dr. Chawla also quoted cases of social drinking, initiating addiction, and couple case where an early marriage and pregnancy affected the lives of stakeholders involved, economically and otherwise. She also brought into the attention of the audience the cases from her own experience in women cell as an intern and a follow member.

This talk was organised in order to bring our youth the real issues faced due to the indulgence in drugs and how it can be prevented by intervention of parents and family. Dr. A.K. Srivastava, the Principal of the college talked about how substance use can block the thinking process of people who experiment and it can spiral out of control. He mentioned how addiction can lead to yearning and anxiousness over drugs and it can further harm and disturb the peers and the family members. There was an open discussion on how these circumstances can be prevented and what kind of conditions are to be kept in my mind while dealing with such a situation. The panellists discussed about various issues like Substance Use is not just in urban areas but is also present from the rural area upto the glamour world. It has imbedded itself as a part of the modern culture and how holding a cigarette has transformed itself into a fashion trend. Substance abuse is no longer a gender thing and anyone can find himself or herself getting tangled and stuck in between its webs. The panellists also discussed about how parents can play a major role in the prevention of drug usage by keeping a check on their children and by perceiving their whereabouts and circle of friends. Panellists, along with Dr. Ravneet Chawla, also brought to light some real life examples and how not only the one who abuses drugs suffer, but also the innocent people in their lives are affected without any reason. The audience also lend a hand where they wrote points and about the happenings that took place near them.

They wrote about how building of trust is crucial for both parents and children and how communication can really eradicate this issue. Some kept the points like how there is an abundant exposure to social media in this era of technology and there is a bridge meant to be built by parents to create awareness and put the children on the right track. One of the panellists also talked about how therapy in India is viewed and it is important to have a vent when someone is on the cutting edge of their life. Therapy can lead to a better environment for a child who has accidentally indulged into such activities and parents are to encourage aid in any form they receive it. Some preventive measures were also considered where parents can detect changing behaviours of their children and gain their confidence in order for them to be open and understand anything the child is going through. After the whole discussion, Dr. Mukhtiar Singh, NSS Programme Officer, was invited to speak a few words by Dr. Ravneet Chawla where he thanked the whole team for assembling the panel discussion in a short amount of time and about how critical and necessary it is for such meetings to be held frequently. The talk was very interactive and many unusual opinions and perspectives were brought to light.

A few observations and suggestions by NSS Volunteers related with Theme

Shivangi Arora

It was a really informative session and ma'am highlighted the role of family in preventing drug abuse. Her guidance to us as pupil teacher how to help a child who is facing any problem in our class really attracted me a lot. It was an informative session

SIMRAN KAUR

I have witnessed some children facing parents who abuse alcohol and their life a literally hell. They can't study, can't eat food, can go out, can't sleep as they are in constant fear that their father may come home and beat them or fight with others or break things.

Damini Sharma

good afternoon mam, being the mother of an adult, from my personal experience i can say that the values imbibed by us in our children matter the most, it's not about the check on our children but mutual trust matters most. We cannot be with them all the time and this generation is much more aware than ours.

Jasmeet kaur

Today there is so much exposure on media and lack of awareness among children so that bridge but be built by parents and teachers so that children can proceed in the right direction.

SIMRAN KAUR

They have much more experience, we should value it. I can relate, my younger brother constantly fight with me, because I stop him from committing certain things, which i know are wrong. Now I relate, who i used to argue with my parents for the same things, when I was young.

She started writing when she was going through the jostled days of college along with a keen interest in reading literature. Her journey has been replete with a variety of experiences, which she simply jotted down. Being an introvert most of the time, she preferred to keep things to herself and her notebook, the outcome of the same is this book. The book derives its base from the daily experiences that everybody has in their lives. As the title of the book reflects in itself, Find Yourself in Me - which simply means she reflects every facet of others' life at some point of time or another. The individuals can see their own-selves through her eyes. The book contains several poems; the inspiration behind every piece of writing is well explained in the prefaces written before the poems. The poems dealing with the demeaning condition of women are the ones with which she is deeply connected. The reason being, she encountered certain circumstances within her short-reach. On a personal note, she even stated that they were dedicated to her mother and hence were too close to her heart. The relatable circumstances around which the book mainly revolves make it the one to read. The moments of delight, admiration, grief, regret etc are jotted down by connecting words and phrases. The book is published in association with the renowned Publishing House “The Write Order Publishing Company”. In order to motivate others to read books, she unveiled her own collection of books. She has tried her hands over a variety of authors and to figure out her favorite is a bit difficult, she added. She stated R.K.Narayan is her all time favorite. His simplicity to express a lot into a chunk attracts her and her reading-buds. Her favorite pick by him is "The English Teacher". Dr. Kusum, Convener of Red Ribbon Club of the college initiated the webinar by her introductory speech. She then invited Principal and Patron Dr. A.K. Shrivastava to present his thoughts on this occasion. Dr. Kusum took the stage and invited Prof. (Dr.) Ravneet Kaur, speaker of the day.

Prof. (Dr.) Ravneet is a Professor and Head of the Dept of Transfusion Medicine, GMCH, Sector-32, Chandigarh. She has a 20 years of extensive experience in the field of Transfusion Medicine. She is a member of core committee of Haemovigilance Programme of India; member of Technical Resource Committee, National Aids Control Organization, Government of India. She started the talk by giving the information about the basic components of the Blood. She explained how blood is Renewable but Perishable in nature. She then proceeded towards the need of donating blood. She quoted that "Anyone at anytime may need blood". She mentioned about the three types of donors, those are: Voluntary donors, Family/Replacement donors and Paid donors. She also discussed about the global donation scenario. About 118.5 million units of blood is annually collected on the global basis out of which 30% is from the high-income countries which is about 16% of the world's population. According to the data presented, the blood donation rate is relatively higher in high income countries when compared to the low income countries. As per the data, there is an increase of about 7.8 million blood donation from voluntary unpaid donors from the year 2013 to 2018. 54 out of 193 countries have achieved 100% voluntary blood donation. Most of the developed countries are willing participating in voluntary donation. According to the data presented, Covid has affected the voluntary donation in an adverse way.

Voluntary blood donors are considered much safer than the other types of donors. She highlighted that how the consent of the donor is important. It is always advised to fill all the documents carefully and the donor should always make aware the collectors about any ongoing health issues. According to her the blood collection should always be based on the requirement and need of the blood. This can be done by organizing small camps on regular intervals. She has also put light on the selection of donor as well as the screening procedure of the donor. She has cleared all the taboo surrounding the act of blood donation. She mentioned about how Covid has affected the blood donation and collection. There was a great team coordination to overcome the hurdles in blood collection.

Some glimpses of the event:

The talk came to an end which was followed by a Question and Answer session. The questions asked by the students as well as the faculty were very fresh, interesting, and had a scientific approach in it.
