Experience of teaching internship at Government Model High school, Sector 20D

Teaching like any other art should be practiced enough to convey the information or message to the students. Excelling at this art requires lots of patience and practice. Therefore, I am lucky enough to be allotted at Government Model High school, Sector 20 D which is adjoining to Government college of Education, Sector, 20D, from where I am pursuing my B.Ed. Course.

Within these three months, with the guidance of my mentors Mrs Uma Rani and Mrs Savita, I got exposure to many teaching resources and assessment methods which should be known to every teacher. Presence of my mentors while I am teaching made me learn from my mistakes. I worked on my personality development, and I learnt a lot about my strength and weaknesses.

Other than teaching in classes, I spoke during an assembly stage during a prize distribution, and it was a great platform to learn public speaking. I enjoyed the process of planning till execution of the program.

In a nutshell, I developed patience, understanding and communication from this experience. I had practically seen how each student are different and how each students need the teacher's attention for their learning and development. Leant that how a teacher's word can change a child's world. I tried to implement or practice reinforcement to the below average students, and it worked wonders to make the child feel accepted and capable of anything.

I have learnt that without any prior preparation, no classes can be delivered in effective way and for me lesson plan making surely made the teaching more efficient and easier.

MY EXPERIENCE

Our internship started on 25th August, 2022 at Government Model Senior Secondary School, Sector 27C, Chandigarh. During the first couple of days, we took time to understand the functioning of the school. Then the month of September was spent on revisions for upcoming semester exams. Each day, we had a new learning experience.

October and November were full of co-curricular activities where we were engaged in all the activities of the school be it Diwali fest, slogan writing or Junior chef competition.

Looking back, I feel the most enjoyable part was the time spent with the teachers and students of the school. My group mates were also very cordial and I shared a great bond with them.

I learnt a lot during my internship program and that has helped me a lot in my professional development as a teacher.

However, I found out that the teacher-student ratio was very poor that makes the work of dedicated teachers difficult. Infrastructure especially parks, toilets, water coolers, blackboards etc need to be taken care of. Otherwise the overall experience of my school internship program was very memorable and knowledgeable.

The society made a humble beginning in early 90's by introducing a small scale Braille Production unit.

At that time the books were prepared manually on Braille by fully trained experts.

With each passing day, the press showed greater levels of efficiency and production and is producing

Braille literature in variety of languages viz. Hindi, Punjabi, English and Haryanvi etc. Besides text books, story books and other general books are also produced

About 10 years back, the Braille Production unit was initiated by installing a high speed index & wand Braille embosser and has been expanded to two big rooms.

Today the press has three index Braille embossers and it has emerged as one of the unique Braille Press in the northern region under the able guidance and dedication of Shri Vishwajit who is running this press since 1997. A resource room is where students spend some time to get academic or other assistance from special education teachers.

Students with disabilities including visual impairments who are placed in a resource room and have an opportunity to study in small groups with special education teachers.

These teachers help the students to improve their areas of weakness in resource rooms.

CURRICULUM ADAPTATION OF LEARNING DISABILITY

Adapting the curriculum involves modifying the content, instructional strategies, and the different ways of assessing what the learner has learned. Viewed in this manner, providing curriculum adaptation is a way in which to implement Howard Gardner's theory of multiple intelligences. "There is no one best way to educate all children. Indeed, the biggest mistake of past experience centuries has been to treat all children as if they were variants of the same individual and thus to feel justified in teaching them the same subjects in the same way."

Teachers, researchers, parents and even students frequently express that students with disabilities have limited exposure to the general-education curriculum or that the curriculum is minimized to the point that students are inhibited in their opportunity to learn. At the elementary-student level, students with special learning needs frequently can fully participate in regular classroom instruction using adaptations of simplified or supplemented existing materials. The goal is not to reduce content for students with special learning needs, but to provide tools for them to access content in the fullest sense. Simplifying existing materials can take many forms:

- Reuniting instructional materials in a simplified format
- Providing summaries, graphic organizers, or outlines of instructional materials.

- Developing study guide to provide support before, during and after reading.
- Shortening reading or math assignments.
- Adjusting the pacing of assignment to allow for re-readings.
- Colour coding textbooks to highlight key concepts and new vocabulary.
- Audio taping textbook contents

Supplementing existing materials include the use of alternative materials to help students master the same content or skills presented in the general curricular materials. Such adaptations include using:

- Direct experiences; films or videotapes, computer software.

Simplifying or supplementing existing materials can be consuming for teachers. Teachers who plan in advance for such adaptations frequently engage parent volunteers or for professionals in adapting material. Students of all achievement grouping appreciate teachers who make adaptations for students who need them, and most students prefer using materials that are identical to those used by their same age peers. Planning can help a busy teacher create materials that will make these types of adaptations routine and provide a bank of resources to draw upon for future classes.

EFFECTIVE CURRICULUM ADAPTATIONS

ARE BASED ON:

→ Adapting Instructional Strategies:

This refers to the way to teacher teaches, the methodologies the teacher uses to provide information to learners in the class. Adapting the instructional process can be made possible through numerous techniques like:

- use of demonstrations or role play.
- utilizing teacher presentation aids (eg. visual or verbal) to emphasize key points and key concepts to be learned.
- Getting learners more actively involved in the learning process through the implementation of every pupil response techniques (eg. response cards, thumbs up, thumbs down)
- Diversifying the selection of grouping for instruction so as not to rely on large group/whole class instructions and independent seat arrangements
- Including a variety of small group and cooperative learning activities, is another effective manner by which to adapt classroom instructions.

- Providing learners with curriculum content through adaptation of traditional reading will involve a peer or an adult reading aloud to a learner.

A number of other possibilities also exist

- Multisensory Approaches
- Whole world approach to teaching reading
- Reland instructions and/or reading
- language experience approach
- concrete materials and manipulatives
- Hands on experience
- Repeat / rephrase directions
- Braille
- Recorded books
- self-checking materials
- Programmed materials
- High interest / low vocabulary reading.

→ Adapting Instructional materials

This involves making changes to the equipment and/or supplies to which learners have access during the course of instruction.

This involves a change in the formats through which information is represented to the learner with the curriculum during the course of instruction. The process of adapting materials provides additional or simply different materials, in a variety of modalities that the learners might use during the course of instruction. Most materials adaptations fall into one of four groups:

- Adapting the readability level of written materials →

By providing content similar to one unit currently under study through a learner grade level reading book, compressed text, or high interest-vocabulary reader. In addition, to reading demand is adjusted when curriculum content is depicted through audio tapes, video tapes, internet based resources, text reader software programs or universally designed textbooks and materials.

- Enhancing critical features of the content within the materials themselves?

Involves adapting lesson materials in such a way as to identify for the learner context that is most essential. Advance or post-organisers, large print display, presentation of new vocabulary words in boldface, highlighting difficult levels in a reading and summaries of main ideas represent a few commonly used adaptations.

• Designing materials with features that appeal to sensory modalities other than visual / auditory:

For example, learners physically walking a route of colored tape on the floor to learn the path of blood flow from the heart (as opposed to studying a colored diagram) or wapping with hands gestures as they learn newly language concepts.

• Selecting alternate instructional materials for their durability or safety features in consideration of a learner's physical coordination or motor skills. In the science lab, a plastic beaker or petri dish might be utilized instead of their breakable counter parts, or a learner might be provided with

A soft book, or book with laminated pages, instead of traditional text.

→ Adapting assessment practices:-

This refers to alterations in the way in which a teacher gets information from learners in her class. The adaptation of assessment practices is not limited only to the expansion of test-taking parameters (e.g. redistributed time on a paper test, use of a device for recording purposes).

This class of curricular adaptations also encompasses using multiple criteria to assess learners' products, providing structured answer frames on worksheets and tests, evaluating processes equally with final products, comparing a learner's performance to her own part performances, and offering learners a variety of practical strategies and choices for producing required assignments.

- offering learners the opportunity to respond to instruction in a non-traditional manner, in some way(s) other than through typical oral recitation or written expressions, is also exam passed in this final curriculum adaptation category.
- Alternative learner responses might include: collage, pantomime, dramatic portrayal, musical composition, motoric demonstration, photographic presentation, or graphics display.

• Testing Adaptations Includes

- Allow test / projects to be taken orally
- Allow pictures / visuals to test
- Read test to student
- Preview language of test questions
- Give applications in real settings
- Have test administered by resource person
- Give short answer questions
- Give multiple choice questions
- Modify format (multiple choice, essay, true / false)
- Shorten length of test / assignment
- Extend time frame
- Allow unfair testing
- Modify grading
- Allow answers to be dictated
- Allow frequent ^{short} ~~rest~~ breaks
- Allow open books or open note tests
- Provide study guide prior to test
- Highlight key directions
- Give test in alternative site
- Allow calculator, word processor etc curricular adaptations allow learners to use their current skill range and participate, at least partially, in a general education. Instructional activity, while promoting the acquisition of new skills.

→ Adapting Curricular Context →

This type of curriculum adaptation results in an adjustment of the cognitive demand of learning to the level of learners. Adapting curricular content might involve applications as straight forward as:

- Reducing the number of vocabulary words assigned to an individual child.
- Having a learner complete only the odd numbered problems on a mathematics assignment.

- Holding a learner responsible for learning three facts about one animal, instead of two facts about each other of five different species or, giving learners the choice of taking a spelling pretest to opt out of spelling for particular week.

* CONCLUSION

Effectively designing curriculum adaptations represents one approach to teaching that may not require a substantial amount of additional work on a teacher's part through it. certainly represents a different needs of the learners are tackled. This strategy even helps every learner in classifying the concepts and makes learning effective and permanent. This facilitates the teacher in the general classroom setup. Thus, one way of reaching out to all the diverse learners in a classroom is to ~~over~~ know the differences in the children in the class and appreciate their work and plan learning programs accordingly.

REPORT ON

“IMPROVING COMMUNICATION SKILLS: Some Suggestions for an Effective Interview”

(4th November, 2022)

The Government College of Education, Sector 20D, Chandigarh organized a lecture under the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) signed with the Regional Institute of English, Sector 32, Chandigarh on the theme- “Improving Communication Skills: Some Suggestions for an Effective Interview” in the Society Period on 4th November, 2022 from 12:00 noon to 1:20 p.m. for the B.Ed., M.Ed. and PGDG&C students of the college. The Resource Person for the event was Dr. Gopal Chandra Nayak, Assistant Professor, Regional Institute of English, Sector-32, Chandigarh. Principal of the college, Dr. A.K. Srivastava formally welcomed the resource person of the day. A brief introduction of the guest was given to students by Dr. Sheojee Singh and Dr. Anjali Puri, Associate Professors, Government College of Education, Sector 20, Chandigarh.

In his address to students Dr. Gopal Ji discussed about the varied types of communication- verbal, non-verbal, listening, visual, signs etc. He also talked about how important our body language (65%) is over our spoken words (7%) and actions (28%), which justifies the proverb “Actions speak louder than words”. He emphasized that communication is not just the sounds produced but a language that is used not only in terms of grammatical sense but it should be meaningful in the context with proper gestures, feelings and emotions. Also, barriers we have to keep in mind for an effective communication were discussed. He focused on simple but effective tools that can make our communication effective as sticking to the objective, being sincere, brief and precise, relaxed, empathetic, giving and receiving feedback, being visual and being respectful towards others in communication.

Further, he laid emphasis on being an active listener so as to fully understand before responding. Being active listeners we must also learn to, “talk less, listen more”. We must read more closely, the emotional side of the speaker and be mindful about our own words because as it is rightly said, "Be careful with your words. Once they are said, they can be only forgiven, not forgotten.

In addition, he also presented interview skills in a broader perspective including the types of interviews, formal introduction, formal dressing etc. Also, the positive effect of an enthusiastic voice during a telephonic interview was also discussed about. Great emphasis was laid on some game changing kind words like PLEASE and THANK YOU. He also highlighted that, how a beaming smile could have a positive effect on the interviewer. He motivated the students to face the fears like anxiety and nervousness by preparing well, in advance, extensive reading and research, or even attending a mock interview.

At the end, a question answer session was held wherein students asked their queries and discussed their experiences after his motivating talk.

The program concluded with a formal vote of thanks extended by Dr. Rajni Thakur, Coordinator for the event, towards the resource person, the worthy principal, IQAC committee, the faculty members and the participating students for all the cooperation and support to make the event a success.

AZADI KA AMRIT MAHOTSAV
(75 Years of India's Independence)

ESSAY CONTEST AND SYMPOSIUM ON
SWAMI VIVEKANANDA AND INDIAN FREEDOM MOVEMENT

SUNDAY, 07 AUGUST 2022

Dear Friend,

You may be aware of Swami Vivekananda's invaluable contribution towards India's Independence. Many youths during that time were invigorated by Swamiji's fiery speeches and were inspired to join India's struggle for Independence. Swamiji's love for the Motherland was incomparable.

Here's what some of the prominent freedom fighters and thinkers have said about Swamiji:

A. D. PUSALKER

(Universally acclaimed as a pioneer in the field of national liberation in India)

Swami Vivekananda was complex personality being a lover of humanity, a world teacher of religion, a great patriot, and a leader of the Indian people. Truly has he been regarded as a patriot-saint of modern India and an inspirer of her dormant consciousness, who instilled a freshness and vigour into it. He presented the rare combination of being patriot and a saint, in whom patriotism was deified into the highest saint ship and loving service to fellow men into true worship.

HIREN MUKHERJEE

It was this man who actively inspired a whole host of National Revolutionaries in the Swadeshi era. ...No wonder the sedition... (Rowlatt) Committee Report (1918) affirmed that Vivekananda had an important influence on those who created a big, pro-freedom tumult in the first decade of the century. That influence Continued and pervades whatever is forward-looking in the National scene even today. ...

JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

He was no politician in the ordinary sense of the word and yet he was, I think, one of the great founders—if you like, you may use any other word—of the national modern movement of India, and a great number of people who took more or less an active part in that movement in a later date drew their inspiration from Swami Vivekananda. Directly or indirectly he has powerfully influenced the India of today. And I think that our younger generation will take advantage of this fountain of wisdom, of spirit and fire, that flows through Swami Vivekananda.

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

I have come here [Belur Math] to pay my homage and respect to the revered memory of Swami Vivekananda, whose birthday is being celebrated today [6 February 1921]. I have gone through his works very thoroughly, and after having gone through them, the love that I had for my
