The event was held in the college hostel, bringing together faculty members and students from the Girls and Boys Hostels. The aim of the contest was to raise awareness about the dangers of drug addiction and encourage students to actively support the mission of a drug-free society.

The program began with a welcome address, setting a positive and motivating tone for the event. The highlight was the Declamation Contest, where six hostellers participated—five girls and one boy. Each contestant delivered a compelling speech, shedding light on the harmful consequences of drug addiction and the need for individual and societal action. Their powerful words and persuasive delivery captivated the audience, leaving a lasting impression about the seriousness of the issue.

Following the contest, Dr. Balwinder Kaur, the VADA Club Officer, addressed the gathering. In her speech, she praised the students for their passionate performances and stressed the importance of spreading awareness about drug abuse. She encouraged everyone to take personal responsibility in making their surroundings drug-free and inspired them to be change agents in society.

The event concluded with a pledge-taking ceremony, where all attendees stood together and vowed to fight against drug abuse. The solemn moment symbolized the participants' commitment to making their community drug-free.
